

1. The University of California is committed to providing a high-quality education for all students, regardless of their background or financial resources. This commitment is reflected in the University's policies on financial aid, which are designed to ensure that all students have the opportunity to attend and succeed at the University.

2. The University's financial aid policies are based on the principle of need. Financial aid is awarded to students who demonstrate a financial need, as determined by the University's financial aid office. The amount of aid awarded is based on the student's financial need, the cost of attendance, and the student's ability to contribute to the cost of attendance.

3. The University's financial aid policies are designed to be fair and equitable. All students are treated equally, and financial aid is awarded based on objective criteria. The University's financial aid office is committed to providing a high-quality service to all students, and to ensuring that all students have the opportunity to attend and succeed at the University.

4. The University's financial aid policies are subject to change. The University's financial aid office reserves the right to modify or terminate financial aid at any time, without notice. Students are responsible for staying up-to-date on the University's financial aid policies, and for understanding the terms and conditions of any financial aid they receive.

5. The University's financial aid policies are designed to support the University's mission of providing a high-quality education for all students. The University's financial aid office is committed to providing a high-quality service to all students, and to ensuring that all students have the opportunity to attend and succeed at the University.
