Cross Credit – credit shared between two undergraduate qualifications. Credit may be internal or external, specified, or unspecified.

Formal Articulations – credit is awarded on the completion of a specific qualification

© This document is the property of the University of Canterbury. It has been approved at an institutional level by the relevant authority in accordance with the Metapolicy. Once printed this document is considered an uncontrolled version. For the official, current version refer to the UC Policy Library.

The University joins other tertiary providers in facilitating such student credit movement. The University supports the principles outlined in the New Zealand Qualifications Authority (NZQA) document: Recognising learning for credit: Guidelines for the recognition and award of credit for learning. It also endorses the principles for transfer of credit published by Universities New Zealand: Committee on University Academic Programmes (CUAP) Handbook (Universities New Zealand website).

A distinction should be made between the separate processes of Admission and Credit

© This document is the property of the University of Canterbury. It has been approved at an institutional level by the relevant authority in accordance with the Metapolicy. Once printed this document is considered an uncontrolled version. For the official, current version refer to the UC Policy Library.

© This document is the property of the University of Canterbury. It has been approved at an institutional level by the relevant authority in accordance with the Metapolicy. Once printed this document is considered an uncontrolled version. For the official, current version refer to the UC Policy Library.

student must first have been granted admission to the receiving qualification. The determination of the student's eligibility to transfer credit is made at the time of application for transfer and not based on their eligibility at the time when the credit was completed.

4.2 Credit to conform with University of Canterbury qualification distinctiveness

4.2.1 The University of Canterbury will not give specified credit for disciplines or qualifications that it is not accredited to offer. Where such courses or

© This document is the property of the University of Canterbury. It has been approved at an institutional level by the relevant authority in accordance with the Metapolicy. Once printed this document is considered an uncontrolled version. For the official, current version refer to the UC Policy Library.