

1

1. The first step in the process of creating a business plan is to conduct a market analysis. This involves researching the industry, identifying potential competitors, and understanding the needs and preferences of your target audience. A thorough market analysis will provide valuable insights that will inform the rest of your business plan.